WORKERS WIN

Teamster 2020 Survey To Identify Top Issues

Working Americans are facing numerous challenges. Despite top line economic numbers that may look favorable, many workers’ paychecks are growing. Add to that concerns surrounding pensions and health care benefits, and uncertainty looms for the U.S. middle class.

That’s why the 2020 election is so very important for this union and its members’ future. The Teamsters are committed to making our presence known and demanding that presidential candidates make commitments on issues that are important to our membership. That starts with input from Teamsters members.

“The Teamsters want to hear from members about what their top issues and concerns are as the nation prepares for this pivotal election,” Teamsters General President Jim Hoffa said. “This union will be putting on a full-court press to demand that any candidate for president listen to our members and address our concerns. The Teamsters 2020 survey is an important step as we hear directly from our members on what issues they’ll be voting on.”

“Visibility will be a key to maximizing the voice of rank-and-file Teamsters,” said George L. Miranda, Principal Officer of Teamsters Local 210. “So please go to www.teamsters2020.org and fill out the survey to let the union leadership know your thoughts about what issues mean the most to you. We want all our members to feel they are a part of the process.”

Together, Teamster brothers and sisters can ensure that this great union plays a critical role in electing a president that will truly stand with our members and the nation’s workers.
